Hawkins was chosen to build this new Publix in downtown St. Petersburg, Florida. The store is around 30,000 SF with a 3-level parking garage above, and includes a pharmacy as well as all of Publix's traditional grocery offerings. Unlike some of the company's urban stores, it's a smaller store that doesn't feel cramped. This new store shows that not only can Publix hold its own in the prepared foods realm, but it can do it in a very small footprint that caters to upscale, urban tastes. "We are pleased to have Publix opening a new location soon in downtown St. Petersburg," Mayor Rick Kriseman said in a statement. "The Sunshine City continues to grow in new and exciting ways, and I am glad Publix recognizes the opportunities in our city and wants to be a part of that growth."
